NUMBER 59.

Alter New Depot.

The citizens of Paris have forwarded a petition to the Chairman of the State Railroad Commission asking the Commission to set a date for hearing of neglect of the L. & N. R. R. in giving them proper accommodations in its depot service at this place, both passenger and freight.

The petition recites that the depot buildings and tracks of the company at both freight and passenger depots are unsuitable and inadequate to accommodate the business interests and the traveling public.

There is not a city the size of Paris along the L. & N. line that has not been given a new and commodious depot and why Paris should be left out in the cold is unexplainable. There is no question about the business end of it, for Paris gives the L. & N. more business than any other fourth class city in Kentucky.

Our citizens intend to push the matter with the State Commission and find out at least why our people cannot get as good accommodations as is given to other cities by the L. & N. Here is where a Commercial Club could do some good work.

Profit in Young Cattle.

That there is great profit in the feeding of young cattle is illustrated in the record made by James H. Cunningham, of near Austerlitz, this county, who shipped Friday to New York Butchers Dressed Meat Company, two car loads of baby beef cattle that averaged 1,400 pounds per head for which he received the handsome price of 6½ cents per pound. The cattle were shorthorns and had been carefully stabled and fed on variety of ground feed.

We have just received a new line of the celebrated Gage Bros' hats for fall. They are very stylish and reasonable in price.

Creamery Almost a Certainty.

That Paris will have a creamery is almost a certainty. The promoters are highly pleased with the success they are meeting with among our merchants and farmers. Subscription books were opened one week ago and near $3,000 has been subscribed. It takes $6,000 to establish the plant on a working basis, and there is no doubt but little trouble will be required to raise that amount. It would be a blessing to this community in more ways than one.

Wanted.

Eggs and butter and all kinds of country produce. Highest price paid.

File Test Suit.

Since the saloons were voted out of Richmond, the City Council of that city has fixed a license for conducting all classes of business, which has caused considerable feeling among the business men of Richmond. The Richmond Register of Friday says:

"Suit was filed this morning in the Madison Circuit Court by Attorney W. R. Shackelford and A. R. Burnam, Jr., representing 30 or 40 business men to test the constitutionality of the license act recently passed by the city council. A temporary restraining order was issued by Circuit Clerk R. C. White, which will have the effect of preventing the city clerk and city treasurer from accepting money for licenses and issuing the same, until the matter is settled one way or the other. The temporary order will hold good until Judge Benton renders a decision on the case at the October term of court. From this court an appeal may be taken by either side, so the license question will not be definitely settled for some time. Since the injunction has been filed merely to determine whether or not the license tax is legal, it is to be hoped that the outcome will be awaited with calm feeling, devoid of personalities, without any resentment or bitterness being displayed by either faction."

Clintonville Sunday School Convention.

One of the largest crowds ever in attendance at a Sunday School Convention in this county was present at the Convention held at Clintonville Thursday. We are indebted to Rev. J. P. Strother for the following notes:

The large Christian church of Clintonville, was filled with people.

The pastor, Brother Willis, made an admirable host.

Young Mr. Hardman welcomed the visitors and made an address abounding in scholarly quotations and practical suggestions.

The presiding officer, Mr. F. L. McChesney, made a response in the felicitous way characteristic of him.

Rev. Mr. Bell discussed the topic, "The Preacher and His Teaching." By illustrations and clear cut phrase he brought out with admirable clearness what successful teaching is.

Miss Amelia Terrell and brother sang a beautiful duet.

Prof. E. A. Fox discussed the combined subjects "The True Aim of the Teacher," and "Teacher Training." He spoke out of full knowledge of Sunday school literature and work. He could not but be instructive.

The dinner was superb and served with true Kentucky bountifulness and hospitality.

Immediately after dinner Rev. J. P. Strother spoke on "Winning and Holding Young Men."

Brother Willis, his gifted daughter and nephew together with a lady not known to the writer, sang a splendid quartette. Prof. Fox then spoke on the State work of the Association.

The following officers were elected: F. L. McChesney, President; Joseph Jacoby, Secretary and Treasurer. Also Superintendents of departments such as home department, house to house visitation, etc., were elected.

All declared it a profitable and pleasant day. The session is to be held next year at Hutchison.

Open Day and Night.

We want all the spring chickens and old country hams that we can buy for restaurant business.

Driver and Team Killed.

While attempting to cross in front of southbound passenger train No. 9 on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad two and one half miles south of Winchester at 6:53 p. m., Friday, Wood Miller, a negro, was instantly killed, his wagon torn to splinters and the horses he was driving killed outright. The steps on the left side of the passenger coaches were torn from their fastenings. The train was in charge of Conductor James Dunn and no blame is attached to the train crew as the usual signal was given by the engineer.

Attention, Farmers.

Don't fail to stop in during the Fair and court days for lunch. We will have fresh oysters, lamb fries, and everything good that is in season.

G. W. CHAPMAN, Superintendent.

NOTICE TO PUPILS.

All pupils of Paris Public Schools who fell below the mark in certain studies, or failed to take examination for promotion, are requested to meet in the basement rooms of the court house Friday, Aug 30, at 9:00 a. m. Teachers will be there to conduct the examinations.
G. W. CHAPMAN, Superintendent.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.

All the (white) teachers are requested to meet at the basement rooms of the court house, Friday, Aug 30, at 9:00 a. m., to conduct examinations of pupils who desire to raise their grades in certain branches, etc.
GEO. W. CHAPMAN, Superintendent.

NOTICE TO PATRONS AND PUPILS.

Paris Public Schools will open Monday, Sept. 2, 1907, at 8:30 a. m. for organization, and suspend for the fair. Let all children of pupil age be on hand at the various buildings, where the organization will take place and lists of books for the year's course will be furnished each pupil. We shall appreciate it if all pupils who can do so will bring chairs with them. We have no seats and desks yet and do not want to put new desks in the old buildings; however, if any child can not bring a chair, we will secure a seat for him. To bring your own seat is not at all compulsory.

Once more let me appeal to every boy and girl to enter school. It means much to you. Our doors are wide open and we give you a cordial welcome and as good instruction as can be had anywhere. Although scattered about in many different buildings we expect to make this the banner year in the history of Paris Public Schools. Come and contribute your mite. Respectfully,
GEO. W. CHAPMAN, Superintendent.

Taylor's Proposition.

William S. Taylor, former de facto Governor of Kentucky, whose extradition has been sought by the authorities of this State since the assassination of Gov. William Goebel, seven years ago, Friday gave out a signed statement, which he says is the first public statement he has made since leaving his native State. He makes the following proposition to Commonwealth's Attorney Robt. B. Franklin:

"But inasmuch as Mr. Franklin abounds in propositions and promises, and seems enamored of the idea that he can do things, I will say this: If he will in some way provide an absolute guaranty—not merely promises—a guaranty that will inspire confidence among sensible, level-headed, honest men—a guaranty, the spirit of which may not be violated though the letter be observed that I will be given a fair and impartial trial, I will gladly return to Kentucky and submit to trial."

In other words, if Mr. Franklin will cause what remains of the $100,000 corruption fund to be returned to the Treasury of Kentucky, no part of it to be used in these prosecutions, thus putting my case on the same footing as other criminal cases; will guarantee that all trial juries in my case shall be composed of six upright Democrats and a like number of upright Republicans; will guarantee that bail will be granted me within the limits of $100,000; will dismiss the indictment against all parties used as prosecuting witnesses, except myself, leaving them free to testify without fear, coercion or restraint; and, last, but by no means least, will in advance by mutual agreement, select an able, upright and impartial Judge to try my case, I will without any promise of immunity voluntarily and gladly return to Kentucky, not only to testify in the Powers case, but to submit myself to trial before a jury of my native State."

Police Court.

In the police court yesterday Judge Hinton handed out the following bouquets to transgressors:

Tom Crump was down from Lexington with a small-size "gag" on and fined $7.50.

Alice Elliott and Mamie Coleman became involved in a little scrap, caused by the green-eyed monster, jealousy, Alice being the aggressor was fined $7.50, and Mary told to go and sin no more.

Paris Military Cadets.

The Paris Military Cadets, the company of boys organized recently by Mrs. E. C. Long, will meet at the old Christian church Thursday evening at 7 o'clock and march to the residence of Mrs. Long on Second street, where they are to have a jolly good time. Mrs. Long desires to entertain her boys before leaving Kentucky for California and a royal good time may be expected by them on this occasion. The parents and friends of the cadets are cordially invited to attend.

Frost Coming.

A weather prophet predicts that this locality will be visited by frost on September 15. He bases his prediction largely upon a popular belief that the first frost will fall forty days from the date the katydid begin singing. The katydid began their nocturnal concerts two weeks ago.

[From Omaha World-Herald.]

The entire lack of faith that characterizes Henry Watterson's attitude toward Mr. Bryan has never been better disclosed than in Mr. Watterson's recent comment on Secretary Taft. Mr. Watterson pretends to be "personally friendly" to the Nebraskan and to be opposing him only for "his own good" and "for the good of the party." He is against him not because Mr. Bryan is not a good man, but because he "lacks availability." He lacks availability because he has been too frank, too outspoken. He has expressed himself too freely and openly living question, and so has alienated this man, offended that one and disgusted the other. Therefore, according to the Kentucky Colonel, he won't do; he can't be elected.

Very well. Let us see, then, how this disinterested, unprejudiced and protestingly friendly critic applies his own doctrine to an opposition candidate—Mr. Taft. In his paper of August 13 he comments on Republican protests against Taft's defining his position on the tariff. "Republicans are afraid," he will be so unwise as to dwell upon the expediency of a tariff reduction." Says Colonel Watterson, "In their view this would be terrible. It would hurt the party and weaken Taft as a political chiefly."

Now what does Colonel Watterson think about it? Surely not that Taft should disregard the warning! Surely not that he should be frank and brave and honest with the voters! Surely not that! But just listen to the Wattersonian verdict:

"Secretary Taft is one of those strong-minded men, who, being for a thing, does not hesitate to say so; therefore, being a tariff revisionist, the chances are that he is not apt to make any effort to conceal the fact. It may weaken him with the party managers, who like to see the campaign funds roll in, but the people—the independent voters who know something about the evils of tariff—are likely to be pleased."

Listen again! "It is a great trick of politicians nowadays to do what is technically known as 'playing both ends against the middle.' Now, if Mr. Taft could or would resort to the trick he might get the lofty and honorable fame of being a brilliant, cunning and successful politician. To hear some folks talk, nothing could be more splendid than to be a smooth politician, no matter what sort of public official such a politician may be."

And listen again—for the further we read into the colonel's program for Taft the more heretical it becomes:

"The trouble with Mr. Taft, however, is that he seems to be one of those peculiar persons who dare to prefer to be honest rather than shrewd—who would rather be a statesman than a politician."

Can it be that the Henry Watterson who wrote this is the same Henry Watterson who has been querulously scolding Mr. Bryan because he would not be a politician rather than a statesman? Can this be the same Henry Watterson who would have Mr. Bryan shrewd rather than honest? Can this be the same Henry Watterson who is so sorely aggrieved because Mr. Bryan will not be "cunning and smooth?"

Is it possible that this great Kentucky mention of Democracy [would prefer a Democratic leader little and cowardly and mean, while at the same time he commends, with every evidence of sincere and manly feeling, the frank and honest and courageous course for a Republican leader?

If this is, indeed, the pitiful attitude of Editor Watterson of Kentucky, as it seems to be, there is no escaping the conclusion that, with one party or the other, he is not counseling in good faith. And the question now arises, which party would he deceive. Or is he only a man driven by some unguessed and hidden motive, into playing horse with his own convictions?

Railroads and Politics.

For some years the reliance of the railroads has been the United States Courts, the United States Senate and State Senates, and now public opinion has had its effect on some of the judges and the real equities of the people are being considered there is a very pessimistic feeling among corporation magnates. The same public opinion is bound to produce a reform spasm in the votes of some of the Republican members of the United States Senate and already the State Senators in several States have been falling over each other to be the first to declare for reduced rates. Now there is danger in this political management of railroads, and sensible people must turn their faces against those politicians who for political effect are ready to harrass the railroads instead of being fair and just to them and the people alike. The public wants reasonable rates, good accommodations and safe transit for passengers and goods. No one but the Socialists desire confiscation and no sensible person desires rates so low that would tend to prevent a fair return on the money invested. At the same time the railroads must play fair. They must reform their way of doing business and abolish the plundering of the inside companies such as fast freight lines, collusion with contractors, and the bridge and terminal extortion and other soft snaps for the benefit of insiders. It will take time to accomplish these reforms and the sooner the railroad managers set their house in order and show deeds meet for repentance, the better it will be for the public and themselves. Instead of Government ownership what is needed is the divorce of railroads from politics.

The Trust Tax U. S.

Ten years of the Dingley law shows a tax of $3 a year on every man, woman and child in the United States. That's only what was paid in buying imported goods. The less direct tax for high prices on domestic goods with foreign competition throttled can never be estimated, but we may form some idea of it by the size of the fortunes accumulated by the magnates of the Steel Trust, the Leather Trust and the like. The most reliable statisticians estimate that each family in the United States pays an average of nearly $100 annually in increased profits to the trusts, in consequence of the protection the tariff gives them.

"Panic."

In a newspaper interview John D. Rockefeller said: "Financial depression and financial chaos will be the effect of the runaway policy of the present administration toward great business combination." And many are the newspapers that are now indignantly protesting against this plain effort to frighten the American people with the cry of "panic" were eagerly printing, with columns of editorial approval, the same sort of threats from the same source during the Presidential campaign of 1896.

Where?

Where is that "conservatism of the South" of which Wall Street has boasted? With Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, forcing the railroads to respect railroad regulation, Governor Swanson, of Virginia compelling the railroads of his State to reduce rates and Governor Comer, of Alabama revoking railroad charters it looks as if "radicalism" were rampant and the "demagogues" in control. Is there no place where predatory wealth can find a sanctuary? Must the big corporations at last obey the law?

A Newspaper's Side Issue.

The New York World is devoting considerable space to the effort to prove that John D. Rockefeller's father still lives. The World says that for several years it has sought to locate the elder Rockefeller and it prints with the younger brother of the oil magnate, an interview in which Frank Rockefeller is quoted as saying that the public may expect the unfolding of an early day of a scandal which will shock the civilized world. This scandal, it is said, will involve John D. Rockefeller and the treatment he has accorded his father. This is all very interesting to be sure, and there are many people who would not be in the least surprised if it developed that the oil king has accorded his own parent the same sort of injustice that has characterized his dealings with other of his fellowmen. But the World would be in better business if it devoted its great ability to an effort to persuade the authorities to call the oil king and

CONSUMPTION'S WARNING

Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. G. G. GREEN.

The aid of scientific inventions is not needed to determine whether your lungs are affected. The first symptoms can be readily noted by anyone of average intelligence.

There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration. But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

A GREAT SPECTACLE

Reproduction of the Eruption of Vesuvius.

PAIN'S WORLD-FAMED FIREWORKS

Expensive Amusement Feature Added to the Big Kentucky State Fair Program.

A stupendous spectacle in the building of which no expense has been spared in making the most realistic and elaborate outdoor picture ever produced, is a fitting description of Pain's "Vesuvius" and fireworks program to be given nightly at the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville, the week of Sept. 16. The electrical and pyrotechnic effects will be the best that skill and money can secure. Mr. Pain's reputation as a producer of outdoor spectacles is unsurpassed. Running for an hour and thirty minutes, each performance will be followed with a display of pyrotechnics containing more new and novel ideas than have ever before been attempted by any other concern.

The eruption of Vesuvius is a subject for a fireworks spectacle which has given to Mr. Pain the opportunity of his life. There is perhaps no man, woman or child who can read the newspapers, who was not awe-stricken with the frightful news which came from Italy a year ago last April, although any story could but feebly depict the horror of the situation which followed the greatest eruption in the history of Vesuvius.

A man with ideas, quick to grasp an emergency, Mr. Pain lost no time in dispatching his famous special artists to the very scene of the disaster. Their sketches and views were made in such profusion as to enable him to work up in a few months, through his eminent scenic artists, Messrs. Percy and Rafter, and their assistants, a picture that has been the talk of the east for many moons.

It is this spectacle that visitors to the Kentucky State Fair of 1907 are to have an opportunity of witnessing. By long odds it is the most elaborate summer night's fete and illumination ever attempted. Three hundred and fifty feet long by fifty feet high, are given to the setting. The most gorgeous of scenic environment and the most wonderful of electrical and pyrotechnical effects are worked into the picture.

To give the spectacle the scope necessary, two acts are employed. They might truthfully be termed "heaven" and "hell." The first is one of the carnivals which has made Naples famous. It is a celebration with the King and Queen of Italy as the central figures. All is joy. In the twinkling of an eye the scene shifts and Vesuvius, with all of its fury, spreads death and destruction.

The spectacle must be seen to be appreciated. It is the entire Manhattan Beach production which has been thrilling visitors to Coney Island. Two hundred and fifty performers splendidly costumed are engaged in making the show a success. The evening's entertainment will conclude with a magnificent fireworks program of fifty numbers, consisting of all the latest fireworks novelties introduced by Mr. Pain.

ROUND TRIP FOR HALF FARE

Railroads Announce the Lowest Rates For Kentucky State Fair.

With seventeen big exhibition departments, amusement features that are the best in the country, music that cannot be excelled, and a speed program worthy of special mention, the State Fair at Louisville, Sept. 16th to 21st, should be the largest attendance gathering in the history of Kentucky. The only one thing needed to make the condition ideal was low railroad rates and this has now been fixed. The railroads in Kentucky have announced a rate of one fare plus twenty-five cents for the round trip, tickets going on sale the Saturday before Fair week, and good returning the Monday following Fair week. Tickets in Indiana will be sold on the Kentucky basis of one and a third fares, inasmuch as the regular rate in Indiana is two cents a mile.

CAPTIVE BALLOON ENGAGED.

To be strictly up to date and cater to the minds of all, the Kentucky State Fair management has not only concluded negotiations for a passenger-carrying airship and balloon races during the week of Sept. 16th at Louisville, but has contracted for a captive balloon, which is to carry passengers in the air every ten minutes. This was one of the sensations of the St. Louis Exposition, and will undoubtedly prove a good drawing card at State Fair, the week of Sept. 16.

For the first time in the history of a State Fair in Kentucky, a handsome award is to be made to the county whose exhibitors receive the largest number of ribbons. This is to be in the nature of a sterling silver plate handsomely engraved, valued at $200. It is to be placed, for three months after the Fair, in the custody of the judge of the county which receives it. Later it is to be hung on the walls of the old capitol, and, ultimately, in a room in the new capitol.

Eyes Keen For Colors.

A young man who had made application for the position of clerk in the silk department of a large store was questioned closely as to the exact shade of a great variety of samples shown him. "We do that," the superintendent explained, "to make sure that you are not color blind. A dry goods store is the one place where color blindness is a positive bar to efficiency. Very often you hear of color blind workmen in all other branches of business. There are, it appears, even color blind engineers and color blind artists, but the big stores absolutely shut out men who have not a keen eye for all colors."—New York Post.

They All Thought About Alike.

Three "tired" citizens—a lawyer, a doctor and a newspaper man—sat in a back room in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke. "I know what your fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't."—Argonaut.

Observant Man.

It is a popular belief that no man "understand dress." Still, it should be known that they have a sort of rough appreciation of general effects. They can distinguish between the woman who dresses well by instinct and one who does so with an effort. They are able to recognize at a glance the girls and women who go through life in the wrong kind of garments and wearing hats which infatuation has impelled them to buy against their better judgment. —London Lady's Pictorial.

Microscopic.

The best microscopes are warranted to magnify about 16,000 times. These are the kind most people would make use of in examining their neighbors' faults. —Washington Post.

A Philosopher.

Askitt—Why do you consider Smiley a philosopher? Noitt—Because of his ability to bear other people's troubles with fortitude. —Kansas City Independent.

More Than $25,000 in Prizes!

See our new grounds and new buildings costing $275,000—steel and concrete grand stand; mammoth exhibition barns; fastest trotting track in the world!

Sensational acrobatic acts free each day! And the world's greatest living color page of amusement enterprises.

Fair's famous Manhattan Beach fire works and the gigantic pyrotechnic spectacle, "Eruption of Vesuvius," actual reproduction of the awe-inspiring calamity of 1906, given nightly in the infield, in front of the grand stand.

150 Yearlings Shipped.

One hundred and fifty thoroughbred yearlings to be sold at the Sheephead Bay sales were shipped from Lexington to New York, at an early hour yesterday morning. The lot of yearlings shipped were owned by Colonel Milton Young, James E. Clay, R. H. Anderson, W. Showalter, Horace N. Davis, O. H. Chenault, and others. It required a special train of six cars to carry the yearlings to New York.

J. A. Coburn's Greater Minstrels.

For the past ten years Manager Coburn has visited Paris with one of the best, most progressive minstrel attraction under the title of the "Great Barlow Minstrels." We have learned to know his standard, "your money's worth or your money back," as an absolute bond of good faith, an advance courier of all that is new, novel and entertaining in minstrelsy. Acting upon the advice of friends and managers in the South he decided this season to drop the word "Barlow" entirely and next week will present an entirely new company, new features, novelties and scenic effects under the title of "J. A. Coburn's Greater Minstrels" with the same guarantee of integrity as in the past.

For years there has not been one of the original Barlows in minstrelsy. Milt G. and Jim Barlow have been dead some years, while "Billy" has engaged in other lines of theatrical profession.

One or two inferior attractions operating under a somewhat similar title to the "Great Barlow" to the detriment of Manager Coburn's business interests, caused him to make the change, which is most heartily endorsed by the public and we take pleasure in extending "Coburn" and his excellent company an early "good luck on their journey."

$35,000 Certificate Stolen.

It leaked out in Lexington Saturday afternoon that a pickpocket robbed A. H. Leahman, the well-known horseman of his pocketbook, containing a certificate on the Interstate Banking and Trust Company of New Orleans for $35,000 and two diamonds valued at $5,000. There is no clue to the theft save that the job was probably the work of a pickpocket at the Blue Grass Fair. Leahman left for Chicago, to employ a detective to aid him in running down the thief.

C. P. COOK & CO.

The K. of P. Fair.

The Knights of Pythias of Nicholasville, Ky., will hold their annual fair at Nicholasville Aug. 27, 28 and 29. This is one of the best fairs held in Kentucky.

Kills His Father.

Robert Anderson, aged fifty-one years, a farmer of Bridgeport, Franklin county, was shot and killed at his home Saturday by his thirteen-year-old son.

The shooting was accidental. Both barrels of a shotgun were emptied into Anderson's back as he lay sleeping in bed, and he died almost instantly. The child did not know the gun was loaded. Anderson had been losing sheep through dogs of the neighborhood for several weeks and loaded the gun each day and took it to the pasture with him. He unloaded it each night and his son thought this had been done. Anderson was a well-to-do farmer and had been a deputy Sheriff of his county.

Big Barn Burns.

While Mr. D. G. Taylor, who resides on the Clay and Kiser pike, was at dinner Saturday the alarm that his barn was on fire was given. Rushing to the scene he found flames bursting from the roof and the lower part of the structure filled with dense smoke. When the doors of the barn were opened the twelve head of valuable stock therein refused to come out and had to be clubbed and gored with pitchforks. While thus engaged Mr. Taylor was severely burned about the hands and shoulders. Thirty tons of baled hay, twenty of straw and 100 bushels of oats were consumed. Loss on barn $1,200 with $800 insurance, while contents was a total loss.

Funds Short.

Lack of fund is checking canal work. Four thousand men have been laid off on the new line of the Panama railroad and it is stated at the Department of Municipal Engineering has been ordered to lay off a thousand more. A further reduction in force is also look for.

J. W. DAVIS & CO.

At the Churches.

There was a large congregation at the Second Presbyterian church Sunday morning to hear Rev. Dr. Rutherford Douglas, of Macon, Ga., preach. Dr. Douglas preached an eloquent and forceful sermon from the subject, "What is Your Life." He was given the very closest attention.

The singing of Dr. and Mrs. Farnk Fithian was highly appreciated. The solos and accompaniments on the big pipe organ by the gifted young organist, Miss Elizabeth Crutcher, considering her age and little practice, was marvelous, and with application there is little doubt but what this young lady will make a name to be proud of in the musical world.

Rev. Dr. F. J. Cheek, of Louisville, who is spending several weeks here with his family, preached a most excellent sermon, as he always does, at the Union meeting at the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

HARRY SIMON.

Central Police Station.

At the last meeting of the City Council the question of providing a central location for police headquarters was brought up by Councilman W. H. Webb. The question was opposed by Councilman Parrish as a useless expenditure of money and a rather heated discussion ensued.

Mr. Webb thought that to have a police headquarters would remedy the trouble of the complaining public about never being able to find a policeman when wanted; an office where they would be required to report, one of them required to be there most of the time, etc.

Councilman James Taylor agreed with Councilman Webb but no action was taken on the matter. If you will allow us to make a suggestion, we will say that a new city hall is needed in Paris about as bad as anything we know. The present city hall is a disgrace to the town when it is compared to our other public buildings, our excellent paved streets, sewer system and other improvements made by the present city administration in the past few years. A city hall that would have offices for all of the city officials, with fire department on the first floor, centrally located, is the one thing needed to top off the best town in Kentucky.

Prominent Actor Visits Old Home.

Mr. James Ray McCann, the noted actor, accompanied by his excellent wife, a prominent actress, arrived Sunday to visit relatives in this city. They have taken board with Mrs. Minnie Wilson while here.

Mr. McCann is a native of Paris, and in his younger days was associated professionally with the late Milt Barlow, the well-known minstrel, also of Paris. For several years Mr. McCann was a member of the company supporting "Billy" Scanlon, the sweet singer, and after Mr. Scanlon's death, he played the role of Maverick Brander in "A Texas Steer," created by Tim Murphy. For the past three seasons Mr. McCann and wife have been playing leading parts with Adelaide Thurston in "Polly Primrose," and it is considered by competent critics that his interpretation of the old light-house keeper in that play is one of the best pieces of character acting on the stage today.

Mr. McCann will return to his old love "A Texas Steer," the coming season and his many friends and admirers will be pleased to learn that he will be seen in Paris on the night before Thanksgiving Day.

On the west shore of the Hudson River, a few miles from New York, Mr. McCann has just completed a handsome cottage, in which he and his wife will spend their future summers, and entertain their friends.

KNEW HER GRAMMAR.

The Landlady Wrote Correctly and Was Not to Blame.

A London gentleman advertised for apartments at a fashionable watering place and received many replies. He pitched upon one chiefly because it mentioned a splendid "sea view," and, as it was not convenient for him to leave his business to see the apartments, he closed with the offer by post, sending a substantial deposit.

When the time came for him to take his holiday he duly arrived at his destination and was surprised to find that not a glimpse of the sea was obtainable from any window of his apartments.

"I thought you said there was a splendid sea view," he said angrily to the landlady.

"So there is, sir," replied the landlady, drawing his attention to a picture on the wall, a really excellent painting of the sea.

"Why, you—er—er—What do you mean by such a swindle?" gasped the gentleman. "I meant a view of the real sea."

"Oh, did you, sir?" coolly said the landlady. "If you will refer to my letter you will see that I distinctly stated there was a splendid sea view 'in' the drawing room. Had I meant a view of the real sea I should have said there was a splendid sea view 'from' the drawing room. I cannot think how an educated gentleman, as you evidently are, could have made such an egregious error!"—London Tit-Bits.

WING SHOOTING.

It Cannot Be Taught to Hunters by Reading Books.

Wing shooting can no more be theoretically taught than can riding, skating, sailing a boat, milking a cow or playing the violin. Practice and perseverance in this, as in all field sports, can alone make perfect, while the most persistent effort even then often fails to make a "crack shot." Certain rules, however, must govern the beginner, which, if observed, will materially aid him in becoming an expert.

When a novice takes the field for game he is very apt to become flustered, or "rattled," at the critical moment when the bird is flushed, and then he will stare, open mouthed, and wonder how it happened. This often occurs in the field, and the tyro invariably has some plausible excuse to offer. His "gun was not cocked," he "stumbled his toe just as the bird rose" or some equally weak explanation is made, or else he lays all the blame on his dogs, whose thoughts, could they but express them, it would be interesting to interpret.

The best wing shooters do not close one eye in aiming, nor do they follow the bird in its flights with the muzzle of the gun, but closing one eye is admittedly better than tightly shutting both, as many young would be sportsmen have been known to do.—James W. Dixon in Recreation.

Wagner's Childlike Happiness.

While in London in 1855 Wagner took a walk every day in Regent's park. There, at the small bridge over the ornamental water, would he stand regularly and feed the ducks, having previously provided himself for the purpose with a number of French rolls, rolls ordered each day for the occasion. There was a swan, too, that came in for much of Wagner's affection. It was a regal bird and fit, as the master said, to draw the chariot of Lohengrin. The childlike happiness, full to overflowing, with which this innocent occupation filled Wagner was an impressive sight never to be forgotten. It was Wagner you saw before you, the natural man, affectionate, gentle and unworldly.—From Ferdinand Praeger's "Wagner as I Knew Him."

Huxley's Larger View.

James Huxley, once a member of the staff of the Pall Mall Gazette, was a typical man of letters. And Huxley, as everybody knows, was a typical scientific man. Huxley had been a midshipman when Huxley was a naval surgeon. Years after the two met each other on the steps of the British museum. "Huxley," said Huxley, "I care nothing for man except as a creature of historical tradition."

"Nor I," answered Huxley, "for him except as a compound of gas and water."

"But," he added, "if we were each of us better educated men than we are we should know how to respect each other's studies more."

Had to Take Him Down.

"Why does Mrs. Everson have her own baptismal names engraved upon her card instead of those of her husband? She isn't a widow, is she?"

"No, but I understand that she had a batch of cards engraved once upon which she styled herself 'Mrs. William Edgar Everson,' and he was so puffed up over it for two or three days that he actually seemed to think he was the head of the family. It is never safe to give some people too much leeway, you know."—Cleveland Leader.

Either Way.

"If you do not take care of your money," said the ant to the grasshopper, "the world will simply sneer and ask what you did with it."

"Yes, and if I invest it and become rich the world will sneer and ask me where I got it."—Washington Star.

Wrinkles.

A small boy of an inquiring turn of mind, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, looked at his father earnestly and asked:

"Father, what are wrinkles?"

"Fretwork, my son—fretwork," replied paternally.

Coppering Caverly.

By Benson Graydon.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastmont.

"I don't care what it costs," declared Caverly. "This man's father nearly ruined me once with his speculations. Now comes his son, who not only follows his father's footsteps in the street, but he clandestinely wins my daughter's heart."

"Those Newtons always were greedy," agreed Tait, fanning the flames of the other's anger. "I don't suppose you want to figure in this matter."

Caverly shook his head. "Not yet," he explained. "Time enough to tell him when he is ruined."

"Trust to me," said Tait confidently. "We will foil the young man considerably."

Caverly went out chuckling. The night before Emory Newton had had the audacity to demand Belle Caverly's hand in marriage. He made light of the old enmity that had existed between his father and Caverly and suggested that Kentucky feuds and Corsican vendettas were out of fashion in New York. Caverly had ordered him from the house, and now he was scheming with Tait to ruin the boy.

For a week or two Newton did not suspect that his brokers were betraying him to Tait. Ruins of hard luck were common enough on Wall street, and he simply seemed to have struck an unusually bad one; that was all. It was Belle who gave him the hint when they met.

"Are you having bad luck with your stocks?" she asked as they sat in the Hargrave conservatory.

"Who told you?" he smiled. "Since when did you busy your pretty head with stocks and things?"

"I heard father talking over the telephone," she explained. "I don't know just what he meant, but it seemed as though he had hired some one to make your stocks go the way you didn't want them to."

"YOU ASKED FOR THE INTERVIEW," HE SNAPPED.

"I see," he said, with a laugh. "I shall have to get even."

"I think it's mean of dad," she went on. "He won't let me marry you, and he wants you to lose your money."

"Don't worry," he replied. "I think I can teach him a lesson. There's the music."

They went back to the ballroom, and Belle forgot the incident. If it bothered Newton so little, it could not be very serious. But it did bother Newton more than a little. It explained to him how it was that when he bought for a rise his stocks fell. When he sold "short" in the expectation of prices being lower, they took an upward move. If it was Caverly behind the scheme, it meant a finish fight unless he wanted to quit the street.

Newton did not need to speculate. His income was ample, but he liked the excitement, and he had inherited his father's stubbornness. He would not be driven from the field. He took his losses placidly and smiled at every fresh blow.

If Caverly found his revenge expensive, he at least found it worth while. Through Tait he obtained from Newton's broker an accurate account of the losses sustained, and the sum was growing well into seven figures.

But even Caverly almost balked when Newton went in for P. and N. This was Caverly's pet stock. For almost a year he had acquired blocks of it here and there until it looked as though at the next election he might gain control.

Newton sold a put at ten points rise. To depress it some of Caverly's holdings must be offered at a lower price. It was a stiff fight. Most speculators held off, but there was some one who eagerly bought at the low price. Seven thousand shares were sold before Newton dropped from the market. He had promised to buy it at 97½. It had dropped to 94½. He stood to lose, and Caverly chuckled.

"Can't even win on P. and N.," he jeered to Tait. "I guess that ought to finish him."

"Siegist & Platt want that P. and N. stock," said the head clerk, interrupting. "We have none."

"Of course not," agreed Tait. "Didn't suppose they wanted actual delivery."

"Well, they do," said the clerk. "Mr. Siegist is here himself, and he refused a check for the profits; wants to know if we keep a bucket shop."

"Send him in," said Tait in a husky voice. It looked like trouble. After Newton had been trimmed the stock had been permitted to rise a few points. Tait had supposed that a check to cover the increase would be sufficient. If Siegist insisted upon the actual delivery of the stock and he could neither buy nor borrow, he would be expelled from the exchange for "bucketing" the stock. Before the broker entered he turned to Caverly.

"You will have to make good with your stock," he snarled. "If you don't, I'll tell just how it happened."

Caverly knew that if he offered stock with no intention of letting it go he was in the same boat with his broker, and in the end he had to send over to his office for the necessary shares. There was a heated session between the two men after Siegist left, but that did not bring back the stock. The registry books closed the following day, and Caverly had lost control by some 2,000 shares which he could not possibly replace in time for the meeting.

That evening Belle was surprised to see Emory Newton passing through the hall into the library. Evidently he was expected, for Caverly looked up coldly.

"You asked for the interview," he snapped. "What is it you wish?"

"I wanted to explain something to you," said Newton. "As you are to be my father-in-law some day, I hate to see you lose control of the P. and N. I bought a put for 7,000 shares at 97½. In trying to stick me you sold to my agent shares that you were forced to deliver. If you want to purchase them back, they are in the market."

"Your agent," echoed Caverly. "Siegist your agent?"

"My agent's broker," he explained. "I knew that my man was selling me out to Tait. By coppering my operation I have won double what I have lost. Siegist is honest; besides, he didn't know."

Caverly sank back in his chair. He had been happy in the thought that he was ruining Newton. Instead Newton had been informed, and he had really been the gainer. Caverly was an old man, and suddenly he felt very worn and feeble.

"I think I'm getting out of the game," he said, with a sigh. "What is your price for this stock?"

"Belle," answered Newton. "She's worth every share and scrip in the market."

For a moment Caverly hesitated. It was hard to surrender, but in the end he knew that Newton would win in his love affair as he had won in the street. He was the son of Caverly's ancient enemy, but nothing mattered. He touched a bell, and the butler entered.

"Send for Miss Caverly," he ordered, and Newton knew that he had won.

A Hunting Dialogue.

"Do you know of a dead sure way to start a good fire with your last match?" asked a sportsman of his guide.

"Not a dead sure way exactly," answered the guide. "But I know a way that I'd be willing to count on."

"No, but a dead sure way," persisted the sportsman, "a dead sure way to start a fire with your last match."

"Well," inquired the guide, flaring up, "what is a dead sure way to start a fire with your last match? That's what I'd like to know."

"Why, let me see—why, you put some powder on a dry piece of birch bark and start it that way."

"But suppose you ain't got any birch bark nor any powder. How'd you start that fire with your last match?" demanded the guide, now grown angry.

"Say, what would I be doing starting a fire?" countered the sportsman. "What would I be starting a fire for? Just tell me that, will you? What does a man pay a guide $3 a day for?"

"What for? Why, to take along plenty of matches. Who'd expect anybody but a man from the city to go rambling around in the bush with only one match?"

And after the dust had settled it was found that the bag containing the expedition's supply of matches had been lost somewhere on the last portage—Forest and Stream.

Joy in a Tramp's Life.

I have never emphasized sufficiently the tramp's disgust at having "to do time" in June. From May 11th November is his natural roving time, his best vacation. In winter, fall, even the workhouse, is often more of a boon than otherwise. However, even thirty summer days, precious as they are on the "outside," pass away sooner than one at first expects them to, and then comes that glorious moment—thunder, lightning, not even a pouring rain can mar it—when the freed one is again his own master. There may be other experiences in life more ecstatic than this one, but I would willingly trade them all temporarily for that first gasp in the open air, and that unfettered tread on the ground, which the discharged prisoner enjoys.—Josiah Flynt in Success Magazine.

A Muddy Day in London.

It has been calculated that the cost of a muddy day in London is something like $25,000. This is not surprising, says Tit-Bits, when one remembers that no fewer than thirty-two tons of mud are carried about from place to place on the wheels of carts and carriages and horses' hoofs.

After a wet day the dry mud brushed from people's clothing amounts to fifteen tons, and a very similar amount is shaken out of the door mats. City mud, however, has its good points. The shoeblack increases his earnings in the muddy weather, and new silk hats and dresses and boots and shoes are each and all the direct outcome of its destructive qualities.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Are Arranged For Every Day and Night.

AT THE KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

There Will Be Something Doing All the Time—Interesting and Instructive Features.

Are you a citizen of Kentucky, a member of any fraternal organization, a school child, a citizen of Southern Indiana, a German-American, an Irish-American, a laborer, an editor, or a militiaman? If so, you are specially provided for in the list of special nights and special days arranged in the program of the Kentucky State Fair to be held in Louisville, Sept. 16 to 21. If you are not to be included in any of these classes, you will be taken care of on Everybody's Day. The State Fair management has arranged most interesting special days and special nights. These are enumerated as follows:

SPECIAL DAYS.

COL. W. W. HITE,
President Louisville Board of Trade,
General Chairman.

MONDAY, SEPT. 16—SCHOOL CHILDREN'S DAY.

C. B. Nordenham, Member Louisville School Board, Chairman.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 17—FRATERNAL DAY.

R. S. Brown, President Louisville Commercial Club, Chairman.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18—LOUISVILLE DAY.

Geo. G. Fetter, Director Louisville Board of Trade, Chairman.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 19—KENTUCKY DAY.

Low E. Brown of Harrodsburg, President Kentucky Press Association, Chairman.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 20—SOUTHERN INDIANA DAY.

Adam Helmberger, President New Albany Commercial Club, Chairman.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 21—EVERYBODY'S DAY.

Everybody, Chairman.

SPECIAL NIGHTS.

J. V. BECKMANN,
Manager Retail Merchants' Association,
General Chairman.

MONDAY, SEPT. 16—GERMAN-AMERICAN NIGHT.

F. W. Keisker, Chairman.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 17—IRISH-AMERICAN NIGHT.

Thos. McCabe, Chairman.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18—LABOR NIGHT.

John Young, President Louisville Federation of Labor, Chairman.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 19—PRESS NIGHT.

Young E. Allison, Chairman.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 20—MILITARY NIGHT.

Col. W. B. Haldeman, Colonel Commanding First Kentucky Regiment, Chairman.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 21—FAREWELL NIGHT.

Smith T. Bailey, Chairman.

Of all of these, Kentucky Day is expected to be the banner one of the great State Fair week. Mr. Brown, as President of the Kentucky Press Association, has named as his associates on the Kentucky Day Committee many of the State's most prominent newspaper men. This committee will arrange several big excursions to be run into Louisville on that day.

On the night of Kentucky Day, special attention is to be given to the editors, as the name of the night indicates. Colonel Young E. Allison, than whom there is no better known editor in the state, is chairman of Press Night, and will see that members of the tripod are handled in a way that will make their visit an oasis in the desert of pencil-pushing life.

One of the most beautiful sights of the Fair will be that of ten thousand school children waving flags on the grand stand the opening day. A special rate of ten cents for admission has been made for all school children on this date.

On Fraternal Day lodges and societies of every character will have an inning. A big tent is to be provided for all organizations taking part, and here visitors may be received, welcomed and registered. Col. Brown is planning some interesting drills by uniform ranks of different organizations.

Mr. Helmberger is calling upon the commercial organizations of Southern Indiana, as well as the editors of that section, to make Southern Indiana Day one that will be a credit to that progressive section.

The German-Americans and Irish-Americans will fittingly celebrate on the two special nights named in their honor, while Wednesday evening will give to the laboring element an excellent chance to show its strength.

There will be no night, however, more attractive than that given over to military organizations. It is planned to have an exhibition drill and dress parade on the track in front of the grand stand on that evening. The glare of the arc lights and the glow of the incandescent, upon bayonets, epaulets and buttons, will present a most attractive picture.

Everybody's Day is for everybody who could not come on any other day, as well as for everybody who has come on every other day. It will have an excellent finale in the evening, when Chairman Bailey has planned a gorgeous program.

The avenue, both sides of which are to be lined with amusements secured for the State Fair, has been dubbed "The Stretch." It will have the biggest and best amusement features of the year, the first under the wire.

THE CAMEO.

It Gets Its Name From the Cutting,
Not From the Stone.

The true nature of a cameo is very much misunderstood by the public generally. Most people think it is the stone itself, when in reality the method of cutting is what produces the cameo. The real meaning of the word is unknown, its derivation having never been discovered; but, correctly speaking, cameos are small sculptures executed in low relief on some substance precious either for its beauty, rarity or hardness.

There are emerald cameos, turquoise cameos, shell cameos, coral cameos. Indeed, any substance that lends itself to carving in such minute detail can be used for cameo cutting, and nearly all precious stones, except diamonds, have been so used for intaglios, but never for cameos. Emerald is the most common precious stone from which cameos have been made, and there are some very fine emerald portrait cameos in existence, notably those of Queen Elizabeth in the British museum. Shell cameos were first made in the fifteenth century.

Banded onyx is generally used for cameo work because of its hardness and coloring, and it is this fact that has caused the misapprehension, the stone being used so much in making cameos that it has now become better known as "cameo" than by its right name—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ANIMAL TRAITS.

Reminders in the Foal and the Calf of Their Wild Ancestors.

It is an interesting study to note in domestic animals the traits of their wild ancestors. There are some characteristics, of course, which are readily recognizable as being similar to those of animals still in a wild state, and for this reason they give a fair idea of the life and surroundings of progenitors. The habits of the dog and cat are too familiar to comment on, but take the foal and compare his traits with those of the calf.

The foal when a few days old can gallop as fast as he ever can in after life. He never leaves the dam and takes nonchalance in small quantities, avoiding a full meal, which would impede swift escape. In lying down no attempt is made at concealment, and when he stands his head is held high. These habits show that the animal's ancestors spent their lives in the open and not in the forests and that they were great travelers.

The calf, on the contrary, fills himself with milk and is a poor traveler. When danger approaches his first impulse is to conceal himself. He holds his head low in order to look under the branches of the forest. All his characteristics point to the fact that the ancestral home of cattle was in a moist, wooded country, while the primeval horse roamed the plains.—London Chronicle.

A Chinese Solomon.

Two Chinamen, brothers, well advanced in age, quarreled over a piece of land which they had jointly inherited from their father and went to law. The native magistrate heard the testimony on both sides and determined that both were wrong and both right, according to the different points of view. Therefore, instead of rendering a judgment in favor of either, he ordered that both be locked up in a cage with their heads fastened face to face and kept there until they settled their quarrel. The cage is a sort of cage in which prisoners are placed with their necks locked into a hole in a board. It resembles somewhat the stocks which were used for the punishment of malefactors in olden times. When the brothers were placed in the cage, they were both very stubborn and indignant, but toward the end of the second day they began to weaken and on the third day reached a satisfactory settlement and were released.

Costly In Human Lives.

In ancient times the great engineering works were costly in human lives. The making of the Red sea canal is said to have involved the loss of no fewer than 120,000 Egyptians. Bucle's examination made him believe the number to have been somewhat exaggerated, but he gives it as still a guide to the enormous waste of human life in those days. The men who kept 2,000 slaves engaged for three years bringing a single stone from Elephantine to the pyramids did not care a great deal so long as in the twenty years in which one of the pyramids was building there were forthcoming the 360,000 men required for the work.

BOOK PLATES.

They Came Within Fifty Years After the Invention of Printing.

It was within half a century from the invention of printing that book plates were introduced as identifying marks to indicate the ownership of the volume.

Germany, the fatherland of printing from movable type and of wood cutting for making impressions in ink on paper, is likewise the home land of the book plate.

The earliest dated woodcut of accepted authenticity is the well known "St. Christopher of 1423," which was discovered in the Carthusian monastery of Buxheim, in Suabia.

It was to insure the right of ownership in a book that the owner had it marked with the coat of arms of the family or some other heraldic device. Libraries were kept intact and passed from generation to generation, bearing the emblem of the family.

The first book plate in France is dated 1574; in Sweden, 1575; Switzerland, 1607, and Italy, 1623. The earliest English book plate is found in a folio volume once the property of Cardinal Wolsey and afterward belonging to his royal master.

The earliest mention of the book plate in English literature is by Pepys, July 16, 1688. The first known book plate in America belonged to Governor Dudley. Paul Revere, the patriot, was one of the first American engravers of book plates and a designer of great ability.—Journal of American History.

THE FLYING FOX.

Curious Inhabitant of the Forests in Eastern Australia.

The flying fox is a very curious inhabitant of the forest near Moreton bay, in east Australia. It lives in flocks and moves generally toward the dusk of the evening, and the noise produced by the heavy flapping of the so called wings is very singular. The flocks like quiet places, where there are large araucarian pine trees, with an underwood of scrub and creepers. The foxes hang in vast numbers from horizontal branches of the pine trees.

When there is a clear space among the trees an enormous number of the animals may be seen, and their noise can be heard, for directly they see anything unusual they utter a short bark, something like the sound made by young rooks. Often every branch is crowded, and the young foxes are seen either flapping their wings and holding on with their hind feet and with their heads downward or snarling and fighting for places.

Suddenly the whole take to flight and flap their furry, winglike sides and wheel around like heavy birds. Many fly with their young holding on to them. The creature is not a true fox, and there is a fold of skin which reaches from the fore to the hind legs. This is called the wing, and it enables the pteropus, as the animal is called, to float and turn in the air.

Obsolete Cures.

It was formerly believed that epilepsy could be cured by wearing a silver ring made from a coffin nail. Seven drops of blood from the tail of a cat and blood from a recently executed criminal were said to be valuable remedies for epilepsy. To cure a felon or run around hold the finger in a cat's ear for half an hour. For toothache trim your finger nails on Friday or eat bread that a mouse has nibbled or carry in your pocket a tooth from a soldier killed in battle. For a runny nose spit on a frog. For alcoholism drown an eel in brandy and make the drunkard drink the brandy. To cure warts rub the wart with a potato and feed the potato to a pig.

Glued Clothes.

"In Korea," said a tailor, "needle and thread are unknown to tailoring. Their place is taken by glue."

"Glue?"

"Glue—a peculiarly fine glue made of fish. Making Korean clothes, the tailor does not sew two edges of cloth together, but then slowly and painfully unite them with fine stitches of the needle. No; he overlaps the edges slightly, brushes on a little glue, presses the seam together and sets the garment away to dry."

"I wore glued clothes in Korea and found that they lasted almost as well as sewed ones."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Reading Aloud.

Surely the sum of human happiness might be indefinitely increased if the people learned to take a real delight in the simple, quiet and inexpensive pleasure of reading. Reading aloud in the family circle is an excellent way of bringing the members together. They have thoughts in common and subjects of conversation. How much better and how much happier is this way of spending an evening than the flane, driving games which so frequently take its place!—Reader Magazine.

Where He Played.

"My husband," said the conceited lady, "is a Shakespearean actor."

"Indeed! Does he play in 'Hamlet?'" asked her friend.

"No," said the actor's wife; "he only plays in the larger cities."—London Tatler.

"Bluffers gets his new car out several times a day. Matter of pride, I suppose."

"Yep. Pried it out of a mudhole three times last Monday."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily given in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formula, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

AN INSECT PLAGUE.

The Mosquitoes That Infest the Region of Lake Nyassa.

In his book "From the Cape to Cairo" E. S. Grogan writes: "The Kungu fly, which is peculiar to Lake Nyassa, resembles small May flies, and at certain seasons of the year they rise from the water in such stupendous clouds that they blot out the whole horizon. Seen in the distance they have exactly the appearance of a rain-storm coming across the lake. When they are blown landward they make every place uninhabitable by the stench which arises from the countless millions that lodge and die on every inch of sheltered ground. I myself have seen them lying a foot deep in a room, and I was told that they are often much worse. The natives sweep them up and make cakes of them."

"Biting and poisonous ants are another pest, but the mosquito is the great enemy of man. It was absolutely necessary to turn in half an hour before sunset and to make all the preparations for the night. I piled all my belongings round the edge of my net and kept a green wood fire burning at each end, and then I lay inside, smoked the native tobacco and prayed for morning. As soon as the sun went down the mosquitoes started operations."

"It was like having a tame whirlwind in one's tent. They could not possibly have been worse. Every night 200 or 300 contrived to enter my net—I have no idea how. The most pernicious and poisonous kind was a very small black mosquito that might possibly have penetrated the mesh. I used to turn out in the morning perfectly dazed from the amount of poison that had been injected during the night."

Foresight With Which These Animals
Build Winter Homes.

In the month of March, before the rivers have opened, on the snow around the heads of the creeks and about the airholes in the thick ice may be seen the curious trail of the muskrat. It can readily be recognized by the firmly planted footmarks, heavily and slowly impressed, and the sharp after drag of the long, scaly, blade-like tail. All through the cold winter months these heavily furred animals have lived warm and comfortable in their well constructed houses, rearing their third and last litter. One house erected about September seemed planned with almost human foresight. Here, with their long sharp teeth and strong, inch long claws, they had cut and cleared wide paths through all the marshes—paths so deep that three feet of ice did not close them, so wide that we have often paddled along them, marveling at the great floating masses of torn up aquatic vegetation. These paths were a hundred yards long and four feet wide and were cut through a mass of tangled cover high enough in most places to thoroughly conceal a duck hunter and his canoe. In the winter months the muskrats can easily dive from their houses into these under ice channels, and the whole marsh is before them to choose their meal from. The long yellow roots of the flag and the juicy tubers of the wild onion (the muskrat apple is the more poetic Offway) hang exposed before them or are readily torn out.—Bonycastle Dale in Outing Magazine.
